ART SPACES ZUIDAS

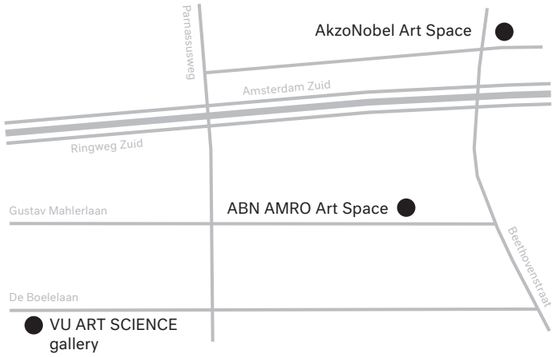

Within the heart of Amsterdam's concrete jungle, there is some interesting art to discover: the corporate collections of ABN AMRO and AkzoNobel and the VU ART SCIENCE gallery are open to the public. The collections show the current state of contemporary art, each in their own very unique way.

In the entrance hall of the head office of ABN AMRO Bank, you'll find the ABN AMRO Art Space, presenting works from one of the major corporate collections in the Netherlands. The collection provides a broad view of post war visual art in the Netherlands. Through alternating exhibitions, the ABN AMRO Art Space offers a platform to new developments in art.

In the AkzoNobel Art Space, right at the border of Zuidas and the beautiful Beatrixpark, you can find the AkzoNobel collection with work by internationally renowned artists and young talent. AkzoNobel collects and exhibits contemporary art since 1996 and its collection is intended to serve as a source for innovation and creative reflection.

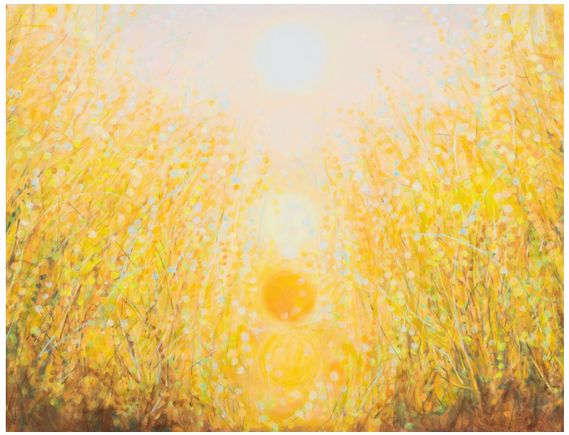

In the middle of the campus of Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam you can visit the VU ART SCIENCE gallery. The gallery focuses on the interaction between art and science and encourages the exchange of multidisciplinary knowledge. In the exhibitions and dynamic public program contemporary artists and scientists share their research on current societal topics.

Explore the latest exhibitions, either on your own or through a guided tour, and discover this lively side of Amsterdam Zuidas. With the art spaces located within walking distance of each other, visit all three on a lunch break or at the end of the day.

Join a 30-minute tour at the Zuidas Art Spaces on Tuesday, November 26
Tours at each of the three locations start at 4 PM, 4.45 PM or 5.30 PM

EARTH

EARTH features artists who explore themes of landscape, ecological awareness, and the artificial boundaries between man and nature. The idea of unity with nature highlights that the separation between mankind and the natural world is an illusion; instead, we are all part of one connected system.

We rely on nature for essentials like air, water, and food. Nature provides emotional comfort and reduces stress, while it is also believed that it reflects something divine and sacred.

In our modern world, technology and urban life can make us feel disconnected from nature. This exhibition invites you to rediscover and embrace our connection to the natural world.

FOREIGN LAND

Foreign Land explores the theme of migration through a range of artworks that offer the perspective of those living in cultures different from their own. The exhibition aims to rediscover the human aspect of migration by exploring why people move across continents, how they experience it and how it shapes them. In the public programme the viewpoints encapsulated in the art works on view are merged with scientific research on migration politics. Especially in these times of heated debate, political extremism and a lost sense of human connection, Foreign Land tries to find a way back to empathy, openness and human perspectives.

With work by Abul Hisham, Jota Mombaça, Anthony Ngoya and Susanne Khalil Yusef.

DIGITAL DELUGE

Starting 2025
SELMA SELMAN | ABN AMRO Art Award

Digital Deluge and Positions address contemporary issues in our day to day lives. Digital Deluge shows the surprising diversity and development of digital art. Some artists in the show use their work to celebrate the infinite possibilities unlocked by digitalisation, while others explore their impact on society. In Positions the artists approach themes such as identity, history and climate change in poetic, personal and sometimes nearly scientific ways.

From the beginning of 2025, a new exhibition upstairs will present the work of Selma Selman, the winner of the twelfth edition of the ABN AMRO Art Award.
